La rifinitura di una parete è un’opzione di grande attrattiva da sempre. In passato, era l’ambito privilegiato dell’ebanisteria classica: l’uso del pellame tuttavia consente di attualizzare l’idea di un guscio che riveste la stanza con materiali caldi e di valore.

Il disegno che deriva può essere molto moderno o minimalista, come in Orizzonte, in cui il ricamo a linee orizzontali richiama la semplicità essenziale delle case giapponesi.

I pannelli rivestiti in pellame, a differenza delle carte da parati, hanno una qualità in più: uno spessore e una morbidezza che si percepisce pur nell’essenzialità del fattore decorativo.

Finishing a wall has always been an attractive option. In the past, it was the privileged area of classical cabinet-making: the use of leather, however, makes everything possible, like the idea of a shell covering the room with warm and valuable materials.

The resulting design can be very modern or minimalist, as in Orizzonte, where horizontal embroidery lines recall the essential simplicity of Japanese homes.

Leather-covered panels, unlike wallpapers, have an extra quality: a thickness and a softness that is perceived even with the simplicity of the decorative factor.
